
Printable Notebook Free

Printable Notebook application will let you lets you organize and print your personal data in the same manner a paper notebook does. You can print selected pages so that they fit into your paper notebook. The program allows you to create multiple notebooks with custom fields for each. Printable Notebook includes examples XML print templates, that will fit a standard notebook size. The template can be edited by hand to fit other sizes as well or to change the page design. The program supports http and email fields, different tab layouts, search across notebooks and more. You can set number of records per page. As result when you add or delete some records, the records placed at other pages do NOT shift. Only one page gets changed, other pages stay unchanged. You can print the canged page and replace it in your paper addressbook. If you have no experience in XML programming or if you want save your time you can make new print templates via Template buider.

What's New in the Printable Notebook?

Printable Notebook (PN) is a small but powerful data to paper manager. It works with all major databases, webcaches, etc. Data can be exported as CSV or TXT, and loaded into a new database using the same actions. You can easily manipulate data and print them. You can also create forms or records that include data like created date or a web service request that sends the data to the server. Printable Notebook allows you to edit the form data during a print session and even create the form using a graphical form builder. PN has an advanced graphical layout editor where you can change the page settings and make it fit your paper addressbook. You can change the records layout (when you print a notebook the records can be aligned top or bottom, next to other records, or in a custom order), the record number, page number, record separator, bullet, line spacing, file suffix, tab, upper/lower case,... Record information can also be stored in a database or webcaches (if supported by the database or web service of course). You can use other data to print the notebook that don't come from a database. Most of the fields can be printed, changed, or searched, so you can easily create e-forms or search web records with PN You can save a record with a "URL" and PN will automatically save the record to your contact database or webcache (if PN detects the field is a web cache). The program can print PDF for data that support it. You can create your custom XML print templates. A template can be edited by hand in the XML editor and include a graphical representation of your form. PN allows you to save your data in printable templates or directly in your paper addressbook. You can also choose from predefined XSL templates that will fit a standard notebook size. You can print on "label tabs", including a label for the page number. All records can be printed on a page, each record has an automatic page number. You can choose to print the whole page, or remove it from the page. You can set the number of records per page, and the number of records per page on each notebook. You can print the current notebook in a different size. You can select fields and print them into a new page. You can select any page, and edit it in the graphical layout editor, and even remove it or duplicate it.
